What is TEI?

WHO ARE THE MEMBERS?

Tax Executives Institute (TEI) is the professional association representing the in-house tax professional community. With 7,000 individual members resident in 56 chapters throughout the United States, Asia, Canada, Europe, and South America, TEI members are your in-house tax professional peers from every industry working for 3,000 of the leading corporations worldwide. They, like you, are the executives responsible for the tax affairs of their employers. Your new network spans the globe. Take a look at the list of chapters to locate the one nearest you: TEI.org/chapters

Factoring in responses of both the experienced and emerging in-house tax professional, well over half in both groups placed a high level of importance on learning and staying up to date on best practices, industry regulations, and trends in the marketplace, and noted it as one of their top challenges.

There are 56 chapters worldwide and TEI sponsors more than 600 education programs every year at the chapter, regional, and Institute levels.

81% of CTO respondents conveyed that a major factor in their decision to be part of the TEI membership is networking.

According to current TEI members, a primary value and return on their investment in time and money is the connection to peers available through year-round executive level networking opportunities.

80% of respondents indicated that access to chapter events and education also played a key role in their commitment, with 78% citing the importance of having the opportunity to learn from other professionals and thought leaders in the industry.

Why join?

WHAT'S THE PRIMARY BENEFIT?

Chapter, regional, and Institute-level networking is here for the taking. Gaining insights and sharing challenges and solutions, as well as camaraderie among professional colleagues, may be the greatest benefit to you. Where else would you have direct access to peers aligned to what you do and directly connected to the world in which you operate professionally? The TEI network could be at the center of your next career development step, and your path to continued learning. THE SUPPORT OF A COLLECTIVE VOICE

ADVOCACY. TEI advocates on behalf of its members to improve overall tax administration through uniform enforcement of tax law and minimizing administrative and compliance costs. Advocacy work is focused on striking a balance between fair, administrable rules and sound tax administration.

NETWORKING. Events at the chapter, regional, and Institute levels are just one part of how you'll access the global network of 7,000 peers and partners. Exchanging ideas, garnering support in your profession, and gaining a leg up to your next career step are just some of the reasons why this is important.

I have a question. How do I join?

DO I MEET THE CRITERIA, AND DOES THIS REQUIRE AN INVITATION?

TEI is an individual membership organization. This means that the decision to join is yours to make, so consider this your invitation to join. Membership is open to in-house tax professionals whose work experience includes a minimum of five years of corporate tax experience (or its equivalent), with a position in tax management operations of a profit-oriented business. To determine eligibility, view the membership requirements at TEI.org/membership. Your access can be granted to TEI membership by meeting the qualifying employment criteria and completing an application online. Downloadable forms are also available if you prefer to submit them via mail or fax.
